A Poem: Open Your Eyes

Open your eyes and open you ears.
Those who don't will suffer from what's to appear.
The day of sorrows will come like a storm.
Unexpected, but announced like the day you were born.
On the ground you stand the earth will roll.
The false foundation that was built will crumble to dust and blow.
Out of this dust my seeds will sprout,
ready to listen to those who shout.
They are the ones who listened, obeyed and prayed
when I called them that day.
Listen and hear what they have to say.
The day your foundation turns to dust.
They will be the only ones to whom you can trust.
On that day lies and sins will be exposed,
that has been spoken from long ago.
Eyes that see and ears that hear,
don't want to accept what is about to appear.
But appear it will from over the hills,
all of My judgments will be fulfilled.
Amen.
