March 14, 2005

I was sitting at the kitchen table reading the Word of God. My eyes were drawn to two books lying on the table side by side. One book had a retail price on it and was being sold by the author on a teaching of the Word of God. The other book I had downloaded from the internet from an author who has made the teachings from the Lord at no charge. Upon researching I found that the author had several other books to be downloaded at no charge. As I looked at both books this is what the Lord spoke to me—“My Word is freely given. The wind of man sells his breath.” Amen.
